INTRODUCTION

Most Vermont librarians and trustees were made startlingly aware of the importance of good statistics in December, 2000, when the Vermont-based Freeman Foundation announced a major grant to support local public libraries in the next two years. These funds will be allocated during 2001-2 based on libraries' 1998-99 local income as reported in the 2000 Supplement to the Biennial Report of the Vermont Department of Libraries. It is thanks to the continuing effort of local librarians and their staffs that we are able to publish this 2002 annual Supplement to the Biennial Report of the Vermont Department of Libraries.

This Supplement includes most of the statistics submitted by the state's 192 public libraries and is arranged alphabetically by town and by population served. Data is for the fiscal year ending somewhere between December 31, 2000, and June 30, 2001.

How libraries use the data

Many trustees and public librarians use the statistics the Department of Libraries compiles each year to compare their libraries to those of similar size. This process helps them assess their libraries' strengths and weaknesses and evaluate their performance in serving the public. It also helps them determine reasonable, measurable objectives for long range planning. Statistics are often used to develop more realistic budgets and to justify budget requests.

When comparing library statistics to those of other libraries, it is crucial to consider context – community character, library history, and tradition. As you use this statistics, remember that Vermont's public libraries and the towns they serve vary a great deal. Some libraries officially serve relatively small populations but actually serve a larger surrounding area. Some libraries serving small populations receive large tax appropriations; others serving a similar population rely on interest from large endowments for the bulk of their operating costs. Community libraries, joint school-public libraries, sometimes report tax support from municipal and school sources, but some only report tax support from municipal sources.

In using the data, it is important to remember that, despite statewide efforts to the contrary, some libraries count data in different ways, and differing local practices and policies have bearing on resulting statistics. For example, some libraries count actual visitors each day to achieve an annual count; others count visitors using a sampling method, counting daily visitors during selected weeks through the year. Library loan periods (one month, three weeks, two weeks, etc.), methods of renewal, and the inclusion/exclusion of uncataloged paperbacks all impact on a library's total circulation. Caveat emptor!

National sources about statistics

These statistics are but one tool in an ongoing self-evaluation process that all libraries should engage in. Regardless of size, a useful source of further information on the collection and use of public library statistics is Output Measures for Public Libraries: A Manual of Standardized Procedures, 2nd ed. (ALA, 1989).

Some of the information including in this Supplement is broken down by age (adult and juvenile) in response to requests from children's librarians. Librarians interested in exploring the performance of their children's services will find Output Measures for Public Library Service to Children: A Manual of Standardized Procedures (ALA, 1992) also helpful. Both Output Measures manuals are available on interlibrary loan through the Department of Libraries.

Libraries wishing to find comparative statistics from peer libraries around the country may do so by using the National Center for Education Statistics' Peer Comparison Tool, available at <http://nces.ed.gov/surveys/libraries/publicpeer/index.asp>.

How this publication is organized

The format of this Supplement is similar to that of previous Supplements. Users should start with the first chart which serves as an index by listing all the public libraries alphabetically by town name. This first chart lists the town, library name, population served, square footage of facility, number of hours open weekly in winter, and when the library's fiscal year ended ("DNR" is included in this column if the library did not report any statistics in 2001).

Succeeding charts are arranged by population served, based on the 2000 census. In some cases, the population served is a combined population of towns that contribute tax funds to support a library. In other cases, the population of towns served by more than one library has been divided among those libraries, if the population of villages has been determined by the US Census. The population categories are:

- Public libraries serving over 5,000 population
- Public libraries serving 2,500-4,999 population
- Public libraries serving 1,000-2,499
- Public libraries serving under 1,000 population

Libraries in each population category are arranged alphabetically by town. Each population category contains the following charts:

- Staffing, square feet of building, hours open
- Income for the fiscal year ending somewhere between 12/31/00 and 6/30/01
- Expenses for the fiscal year ending somewhere between 12/31/00 and 6/30/01
- Holdings - books
- Holdings – other materials
- Services – hours open weekly in winter, registrations, visits, reference transactions
- Circulation and interlibrary loan
- Programming and outreach
- Computers and computer-based services

More extensive definitions of the terms used are included on the following pages, and there is a brief key on each chart.

This data is also available on diskette using Microsoft Excel, and custom reports are also available upon request. For more information about any of the data included in this Supplement, contact Marianne Kotch, Director, Public Library Support Services, 828-2320, marianne.kotch@dol.state.vt.us.

Many thanks to all the Vermont public librarians who make this publication possible!

2000-1 STATISTICAL ROUNDUP

Vermont public library use declined slightly in most areas, but local support rose in the past fiscal year. Program attendance rose, perhaps due to a more conscientious effort to keep statistics. Public libraries also worked hard to purchase more audio-visual materials and to deliver materials to those unable to come to them for service. Fewer Vermonters volunteered to help their public libraries but remained invaluable to their being able to extend services.

PUBLIC LIBRARIES SERVING UNDER 1,000 POPULATION

There are 38 libraries serving towns with populations under 1,000 in Vermont. 20% of the libraries in the state fall into this category. The smallest populations served year-round by libraries are Guildhall (268), Hancock (382), and Pittsfield (pop. 427). Three libraries are only open in the summer – West Burke (pop. 364), Plymouth (pop. 555) and Windham (pop. 328). The library in Winhall has been closed for several years. Several libraries in this population range serve seasonal populations (e.g., Fairlee, Greensboro, Middletown Springs, North Hero, Peacham).

Some significant facts:

- Four libraries serving under 1,000 are combined school-public facilities (“community libraries”)
- Only four public libraries serving populations under 1,000 employ librarians holding MLS degrees, and only 4% of all public library staff work in these libraries. Many are run completely by volunteers.
- The average per capita tax support for these libraries is $10.31, with a range of $0.00 (several) to $45.87 (Readsboro, a community library). The state average is $12.17.
- The average per capita total expenditure is $18.88 for libraries serving under 1,000, with a range of $0.52 (Windham) to $55.70 (Peacham). The state average is $19.41.
- 8% of the books owned by Vermont public libraries are held in those serving this population group.
- 5% of all visits to Vermont public libraries are to those serving under 1,000 population. These libraries also account for only 3% of the circulation and 7.5% of the interlibrary loans received.
